

Lubricant Key Account Management

Tuesday 29th September to Thursday 1st October 2020

Horwood House, Little Horwood, Buckinghamshire

The course aims to provide delegates with the practical skills they need to make a success of Lubricant Key Account Management including market segmentation, pricing models, sales methodologies, consumer buying behaviour, approaches to industrial sales, and devising lubricant key account management strategies for ensuring customer satisfaction and organisational success.

Who Should Attend

This in-depth, practical training course will help those in a customer-facing role with responsibility for key accounts within an organisation such as field-based Field Sales or Technical Representatives, Key Account Managers, or office-based Customer Service Representatives, to understand the principles and practices of lubricant key account management and how to apply these successfully inside their own organisations. It would also benefit those working in support roles to Key Account Managers to better understand how lubricant key account management works and the interfaces with the organisation.

About Your Expert Trainer

David Whitby is Chief Executive of Pathmaster Marketing Ltd, a business development consultancy for the international downstream oil, gas and energy industries. David began his career with British Petroleum as a process chemist at the Kwinana refinery in Western Australia. He worked for BP for 22 years in a number of management positions, including Marketing and Business Development Manager, Business Manager at BP Ventures, Project Leader for Industrial Lubricants at BP Research and Marketing Services Officer at Duckhams Oils.

David was Programme Director for Lubricants Courses at The Oxford Princeton Programme (formerly the College of Petroleum), where he was responsible for planning the overall lubricants course programme and for the content and marketing of all the courses. He also directed the Advanced Lubrication Training Programme for the United Kingdom Lubricants Association. Over the last thirty years, David has directed and lectured to over one hundred lubricants training courses for more than thirty companies and organisations.

The three-day residential course also qualifies for 18 hours of Continuing Professional Development (CPD) under the Registered Lubricant Professional (RLP) scheme. For more details go to <http://www.ukla.org.uk/registered-lubricant-professional-cpd/>

Course fees

The cost for UKLA members will be £895 and for non-members £1095 excluding VAT. The course fee includes all course materials, meals and accommodation for the first and second night.

To book email secretariat@ukla.org.uk, or call +44 (0)1442 875922

Course Agenda Lubricant Key Account Management

Day 1 – Principles of Account Management

09-00	Introduction/Round Robin	Mr R D Whitby
09-15	Fundamentals of Marketing and Selling	Mr R D Whitby
10-15	COFFEE
10-30	Lubricants Marketing and Sales Channels	Mr R D Whitby
11-30	Understanding Markets: Market Research	Mr R D Whitby
12-30	LUNCH
13-30	Retail Lubricants: Consumer Buying Behaviour	Mr R D Whitby
14-30	Industrial Lubricants: Company Buying Behaviour	Mr R D Whitby
15-30	TEA
15-45	Use of PR and Advertising Agencies for Effective Marketing	Mr R D Whitby
16-30	Industrial Market Communications	Mr R D Whitby
17-15	End

Day 2 – Account Management Approaches

09-00	Detailed Market Segmentation Methods	Mr R D Whitby
10-00	Influence of Automotive Lubricant Packaging on Sales	Mr R D Whitby
11-00	COFFEE
12-00	Marketing Inputs to New Product Development	Mr R D Whitby
13-00	LUNCH
14-00	Customer Support Services as a Marketing Aid	Mr R D Whitby
15-00	Devising Lubricants Marketing and Sales Strategies	Mr R D Whitby
16-00	TEA
16-15	Organisation for Effective Marketing and Sales	Mr R D Whitby

17-15 End

Day 3 – Strategic Lubricant Key Account Management

09-00	Lubricant Pricing Policies	Mr R D Whitby
10-00	Lubricant Key Account Management	Mr R D Whitby
11-00	COFFEE
12-00	Supply Chain Management	Mr R D Whitby
13-00	LUNCH
14-00	Practical Sales Tactics	Mr R D Whitby
15-00	“One Stop Shop” Solutions to Marketing Lubricants	Mr R D Whitby
16-00	TEA
16-15	Panel Session: Questions and Answers	Mr R D Whitby
17-15	End	